FOREWORD

The entry of the United States into the war made the nation conscious of the value of the universities as national laboratories from which the preparation for war must in a large measure be directed and in which it must in no small degree be perfected. As this record of war-time testifies, Washington University bore its full share of the work of preparation and of execution, in the laboratory, in the council chamber, and in the field. May it now perform with the same distinguished success its share of leadership in the new peace of nations.

School of Commerce and Finance

THE proposed building for the new School of Commerce and Finance will be erected at the northwest corner of the first Quadrangle, sometime during the coming summer. It will be a long structure, similar in construction to the buildings on each side of it, Eads Hall and Cupples 2. The School of Commerce and Finance will extend on the eastern extremity to the Sophomore wall, which lies between Cupples 1 and Ridgley Library. Space in the building will be devoted to large lecture halls, modern library facilities, and professors' offices. The cost will approximate $80,000.

THE new School of Law will occupy the southwest corner of the first Quadrangle. It will be an imposing structure lying between Busch Hall and Eads Hall, and its eastern end will touch the Freshman wall, jutting out at the southern section of Ridgley Library. It will easily be the most impressive building on the Quadrangle. Facilities will be provided for lecture halls, a complete law library, which will probably be the largest in the city, trial rooms for Moot court cases, and offices for the dean and professors. The cost of the building will be approximately $200,000.

School of Fine Arts

THIS building of the School of Fine Arts in the foreground is one of three planned for erection on substantially the same ground now occupied by the School of Arts. The present building is only a temporary affair, which was removed to the southwestern portion of the campus of Washington University from the World's Fair exhibition in Forest Park in 1903. The group of three new buildings will consist of a museum, fronting on Skinker Road, the above building, for lecture courses on art and for practical work, and a corresponding building extending westward for the School of Architecture. The buildings will be joined in a manner similar to those on the Quadrangle. The School of Architecture will be removed from the Quadrangle and included in the group composing the School of Fine Arts. This group of three buildings will make, perhaps, one of the most beautiful in St. Louis.

LIBRARY OF WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY ST. LOUIS - MO.

1918 FOOTBALL SEASON

"Unprepared as I am,—"

IT was at the banquet board, where and when all good Washington men came together. From white-haired alumnus to smooth-faced undergrad, they laughed and talked and joked over the festive food, and in the words of the poet it was "some party."

Then one of the antedeluvian boys arose and as the assembly applauded tumultuously, he parked his beard around his neck. The relic was preparing to speak.

For the good of the order we shall pass over the details of his address. Enough to say that he enthralled his listeners with that grand old line which is older than himself, to wit, "I remember back in the rosy days of Washington, when a man had to be a registered miner or a recognized pugilist to get on the squad; when 'Spook' McSpiff made all-world quarterback; when we would have won the championship of Christendom if all the referees in the world weren't crooks, when————————oh, why continue, fellow-students, those were the real days; and if you never lived then, you might as well die now."

The antique retired amid shouts and shrieks and psalms and paeans. His fellow remnants of other days did him more than honor. But there was in the house just a simple little freshman who sat and wondered. He picked from in front of him a small card which read,—Washington 26, Drake 0; Washington 19, St. Louis U. 0; Washington 20, Nebraska 7.

The freshman scratched his head and then he nudged the senior next to whom he was sitting. The poor "frosh" was too full for utterance, he couldn't say a word, because perplexity had taken a strangle hold on his esophagus. But he looked at the card and then at the relic, and then he gave the howling mob the once over, and then he gave up.

"I getcha, kid," consoled the senior. "I used to feel the same way about it, but since then I've learned better. These birds do this every year; and if they didn't the Union party would be a flivver. It gets to be their prerogative, and you'll do the same thing in a couple hundred years, yourself."

The freshman was thinking twenty years hence when he would be on the witness stand, swaying the suckers and agonizing the helpless ones, as follows and to wit:

"Undergraduates, Gentlemen, and Faculty of Washington University: Unprepared as I am, it gives me a great pleasure, etc. I am very glad to be reveling with you while you give just honor to the glorious gridiron gladiators of 1940. For the fourth successive time Washington's name has been enscribed on the banner of American football supremacy. My heart throbs and my voice thrills.

"But, gentlemen and members of the faculty, let me digress a moment and talk of that incomparable team of 1918, which brought to Washington her first undisputed honors, the Student Army Training Corps championship team of the Missouri Valley Conference. I was a wall-eyed freshman then, and my wisdom tooth was still but a hope and prospect; but I realized that I would be the first alumnus who would ever have a right to speak the truth at a football banquet.

"To you whose faces are soft and whose heads are hard, let me explain the exact circumstances. It seems that there was a war at about that time, and if I remember correctly the United States was involved. As a result many of the men had gone to the front to shoulder the gun or fountain pen, and our hopes were none too bright. Then along came the S. A. T. C., which brought hundreds of new faces to camp and campus and absolved professionals of their wrongs and made freshmen football players possible.

"To briefly put just what this S. A. T. C. could do, I will give a few examples: It dragged back to the realm of possibility such men as Busick and Kohlbry, who had already sunk under the collegiate horizon; it lent us the service of Eber Simpson, erstwhile Wisconsin University luminary; it made for our purpose the professional Feuerborn and Evans as pure and white as the driven snow, and it flooded us with freshmen.

"Thus did Rutherford assemble these odds and ends, and out of them he manufactured a patch quilt of gridiron efficacy. Patch quilt, did I say? Pardon, I was sacrilegious. He assembled a mosaic that would do honor to the Egyptian School of Fine Arts.

"Because of an epidemic of Spanish Influenza which permeated throughout the entire world and Germany, it was considered wise to postpone the football activities until early in November. It also might be pertinent to explain here that this same epidemic saved the University of Missouri team from meeting Washington that year. Washington always did like to play the Tigers, but it was especially anxious that the Columbians come that year. We had a new game that we wanted to teach them.

"Well, after Health Commissioner Starkloff figured that no more guys were going to die, they let us start to play. The first game was with Westminster College, whom we beat, 30 to 6. There will always remain a question, unanswered throughout the ages—"Just how did Westminster get that touchdown?" This game was simply a workout and was an indicator as to what could be expected later on. Twenty-one men got into the game, thus being a gauge of material on hand.

"The Rolla Miners called the following week and went back with a 26 to 0 hangover. The Miners are part of the University of Missouri, so this victory alleviated the distress at our being unable to embalm the Bengals.

"The first Conference game of the season duplicated the score of the previous Saturday, 26 to 0. This, however, was against the Drake University team of Des Moines, a school which was no little in the need of mollification. The Bulldogs — they call them bulldogs — evidently had their

(Captain and Halfback)

"It took more than one to stop him." George was the captain of the best football team Washington has had in the history of the school. He is 19 years old, weighs 186 pounds, and is 5 feet 10 inches tall. He is a junior in the School of Commerce and Finance.

HENRY C. GRIESEDIECK
(Captain-Elect and Halfback)

"So they made him captain." Next season Henry will lead the Myrtle and Maroon forces, and if he acquits himself as well as a leader as he did as a subordinate, a good leader has been chosen. He is 20 years old, weighs 165 pounds, and is 5 feet, 10 inches tall. He is a sophomore in the Engineering School.

EBER SIMPSON
(Quarterback)

"As good an all 'round player as he was, his head was his greatest asset." Simpson proved himself worthy of being named the All Western Quarterback in 1916-17. He is 23 years old, weighs 156 pounds, and is 5 feet 9 inches tall. He is a junior in the Medical School.

JOSEPH EVANS
(Halfback)

"A dark-horse that suddenly came to light." Joe's great open field running and his ability to receive forward passes were largely responsible for the downfall of Nebraska and St. Louis. Washington students will always remember when he ran through the entire Cornhusker team for a touchdown. He is 23 years old, weighs 130 pounds, and is 5 feet 8 inches tall. He is a senior in the Medical School.

URBAN J. BUSICK
(End)

He came back with more scrap than ever. Busick had put away his football clothes; but when he was made eligible to play again by the S. A. T. C. ruling, he went out and put the same old fight in the game. He is 22 years old, weighs 170 pounds, and is 5 feet 11 inches tall. He is a senior in the Medical School.

E. ALFRED MARQUARD
(Center)

He proved to be as good a center in football as he is in basketball. Al's last game in a Washington football uniform was his best one. Nebraska men will remember the powerful Washington center for some time to come. He is 21 years old, weighs 170, and is 6 feet 2 inches tall. He is a senior in the Dental School.

KARL KOHLBRY
(Guard)

"Some stars twinkle but others just shine." Kohlbry played a steady, consistent game and his presence was always keenly felt. He is 22 years old, weighs 172 pounds, and is 6 feet tall. He is a senior in the Medical School.

WILLIAM FEUERBORN
(End)

"He had luck, but it was bad." Bill was injured during the early part of the football season and hardly had an opportunity to live up to his reputation. He is 20 years old, weighs 186 pounds, and is 6 feet 2 inches tall. He was a sophomore in the College.

OLIVER KREAHE
(Tackle)

"An iron man who never gives up." It didn't take the opposing team very long to find out that it wasn't wise to make tackle plunges through his side of the line. He is 20 years old, weighs 170 pounds, and is 5 feet 11 inches tall. He is a freshman in the Engineering School.

JOSEPH A. HAUSLADEN
(Fullback)

"Joe" played hard and his line plunges netted good gains. He is 21 years old, weighs 170 pounds, and is 5 feet 11 inches tall. He is a freshman in the School of Commerce and Finance.

WALTER SIEBERT
(Quarterback)

"Dutch" wa ssomewhat the victim of circumstances. Although it was his luck to have to compete against the great Simpson, he got into enough games to win a letter. He is 20 years old, weighs 140 pounds, and is 5 feet 8 inches tall. He is a freshman pre-medic in the College.

HAROLD LIPPERT
(Tackle)

"Lip" is a hard worker and he gets results. Opposing players found it as hard to get through his tackle as others did in high school days. He is 19 years old, weighs 183 pounds, and is 6 feet 2 inches tall. He is a freshman in the School of Commerce and Finance.

JOSEPH A. SAULS
(Center)

Because of unusual competition, Sauls didn't have an opportunity to play in many games. He promises to develop, however, and should make a valuable man for the team. Joe is 19 years old, weighs 172 pounds, and is 5 feet 9 inches tall. He is a freshman in the Engineering School.

BERNARD WINKLEMAN
(Guard)

Benny's toe caused 'em all to play 'way back. Winkleman has three more years at the University, during which he may demonstrate the art of kicking. He is 20 years old, weighs 177 pounds, and is 6 feet 1 inch tall. He is a freshman in the School of Commerce and Finance.

FRED POTTHOFF
(Fullback)

"Let Pothoff have the ball." "Frotz" hit the line low and hard, and gained consistently on his line plunges. He is 20 years old, weighs 177 pounds, and is 5 feet 9 inches tall. He is a freshman in the College.

RUSSELL E. DEEDS
(Guard)

"A stonewall linesman." Many an ambitious opposing line plunger was stopped when attempting to gain through Deeds' guard. He is 20 years old, weighs 198 pounds, and is 6 feet tall. He is a freshman in the Engineering School.

ELMER HERBERT
(Guard)

"His time is coming." Another year will see Herbert playing a regular position on the team. He is 20 years old, weighs 180 pounds, and is 5 feet 11 inches tall. He is a freshman in the Dental School.

MORRIS SHIPPER
(End)

"Watch that little end." "Ship" was right there when it came to receiving forward passes or stopping end runs. He is 19 years old, weighs 139 pounds, and is 5 feet 8 inches tall. He was a freshman in the Engineering School.

VAN BROKAW
(Manager)

Van was always on the job. He made a steady and capable football manager for a championship team.

Much credit for the success of the team is due John Teuscher, Henry Uhlrich, Francis Weinel, George Finke, Herbert Rousch, Thomas Thompson, John Grant, Richard Hafner, Louis Magualo, Leo Shanley, and Walter Schulz, who came out regularly and greatly assisted the team in practising for the games.

BASKETBALL · SEASON

AS the Wabash puffed into Union Station on February 16, from Lincoln, Nebraska, Captain Al Marquard, leader of the 1919 Pikeway basketball team, stepped off and turning around, remarked to Coach Dick Rutherford with a convincing smile of satisfaction, "Come to think of it, coach, we set a new mark in the basketball history of the old Alma Mater." That new mark was two conference victories abroad, one over Drake, and the other over Ames.

Aside from that success and the two victories over St. Louis U., the season at the Pikeway institution proved only a mediocre one at the best. The varsity finished in a tie with Drake for the cellar honors in the Missouri Valley Conference race, possessing a record of two victories and eight defeats for an average of .200.

Following several large score wins over the local high school fives, the varsity journeyed to Columbia, Mo., where the state quintet was engaged in a two-game series. Captain Marquard was the only veteran in the Red and Green line-up, the remainder of the team consisting of new material. Missouri annexed the two battles. Again the varsity made a promising showing against teams from secondary colleges. Duncker and Russell returned from the service and became members of the squad. Along with McElwee, McCallum, Rodden and Capt. Marquard, a bright finish was expected for the season.

The varsity next invaded the north. Ames and Drake were forced to bow before the attack of the local men, but the varsity in turn succumbed to Nebraska in a two-game series. Returning home, Kansas U. was met at Francis Gym, but the Jayhawkers took two well played battles. The St. Louis U. quintet was the next to make the trip to Francis Gym. The Red and Green outclassed the Billikens, its two victories giving the Pikers the local collegiate title for the fifth successive year. Missouri completed the varsity's schedule and again succeeded in taking the two games.

The last Missouri game came as a fitting climax to the Pikeway season. Starting with a dash of speed, the local men ran up a slight lead of a few points, but Scott, left forward for Missouri, shot a few field goals that put the two aggregations into an 8-8 tie. From this point of the game until the last four minutes of play, the varsity succeeded in keeping a slight lead at all times. With the tally 25 to 24 in our favor, Missouri called for time out. After getting together for a few seconds, the Bengals exhibited some basketball that drew admiration from the spectators. In this last four minutes of play the Tigers scored eleven points, while the best that the Red and Green could do was to garner a single tally. The contest ended with Missouri on the long end of a 35-26 score.

Four seniors on the squad of seven are expected to complete their athletic career for Washington, but Captain Al Marquard is expecting to enter the Medical School, so that he will have another athletic year to compete for the Red and Green. Henry Duncker, Jess Rodden and Herb Bryant are graduates. Don Russell, Pinckney McElwee and Duncan McCallum will be back next year.

ADVICE to the reader: Kindly pinch yourself before reading. Otherwise you will believe that you are asleep and dreaming. Of course, you must believe in our integrity. We are actually telling the truth.

The fact of the matter is that the freshman basketball team won the 1919 city court championship. Of course, it sounds unreasonable, but it is the truth. There is no theoretical reasoning or labyrinth line of form to determine this truth. "Figgers don't lie."

The "frosh" played the varsity in four games and in each game did they emit as decided winners. It will be remembered that the varsity handily won the series from St. Louis University. Then add the fact that the first year men played "hoss" with the Concordia Seminary team, and you can't help admitting that the class of '22 had an undisputed lien on the local collegiate championship.

Now, on the alternate glove, the St. Louis Amateur Association team won the municipal laurels. The "frosh" played this team a pair of games, thereby adding two more to the "win" column. Thus add collegiate title to municipal title and you have the title complete.

The funny part of the thing is that the "frosh" always won with a couple of their teammates on the sidelines. It seems that there was an over-abundance of material. Speaking of the material, we nominate the following names for the Hall of Fame: Hausladen, Hurd, Winkelman, Linnemeyer, Conzelman, Lippert, Kreahe and Thompson.

E. ALFRED MARQUARD
(Captain and Center)

"The axle of the wheel." The team played around "Al," the All-Missouri Valley center of last year. He played well and was a great asset to the team.

JESSE RODDEN
(Guard)

"Hap" played back and prevented many an ambitious forward from tossing the ball through the iron ring. He graduates from the University this year after two successful seasons with the varsity.

HENRY DUNCKER
(Forward)

"Henry's" steady, consistent shooting, coupled with his knowledge of the game, could be depended upon to score many points for Washington. He has played three years with the varsity and leaves behind him an enviable record.

DON O. RUSSELL
(Guard)

With an intuitive sense of the game and an aggressive spirit, Russell's guarding was an important feature of many of the games played.

DUNCAN McCALLUM
(Forward)

Although handicapped by injuries, "Dunc" was an instrumental aid to the team. His good shooting and floor work were at times, however, sadly missed.

GEORGE BERGER
(Guard)

George showed the same "pep" and fighting spirit in his first year with the varsity five that distinguished him in his two years with the football squad.

HERBERT E. BRYANT
(Forward)
(Service Letter)

"Herb's" first year at basketball was a successful one. His value as a substitute was due to his floor work and his ability to keep cool under fire.

PINCKNEY McELWEE
(Forward)

"They barked so darn loud early in the game, that we were unable to score until the last period. However, when we did start the entire kennel couldn't stop us. Griesedieck and Potthoff were the outstanding stars in the muzzling act.

"At length, naturally, St. Louis University had to come. It always comes, but this year we were waiting. I recall that the previous season we were also waiting, but it was with the sack in our hands as the sucker in the snipe act. Well, we had been hearing a lot about 200-pounders and new coaching systems and the usual Grand avenue advance line issued from Garavellis, so when Taps was blown on the night before the big storm we agreed that it would be some battle.

"Well, when you've got fellows who could pass like Simpson, and fellows who could catch passes like Berger and Evans, what's the use of losing to teams like St. Louis U., I want to know. That game was just a symphony of forward passes, with the Varsity acting as the whole orchestra. All that St. Louis did was to dust off the instruments.

"In the second period Eber threw the ball to Captain Berger who double-timed 40 yards to the goal-line. Then a few minutes later Evans froze onto the bone of contention and 35 yards later we had another touchdown. The Billikens tried to break in on the music in the second half and tried a passing duet on our 30-yard line. In order that they should not make this mistake again, Berger annexed the ball and ambled 70 yards for a third touchdown.

"I ask you, gentlemen, doesn't this move you? I do not hear much response. Well, now comes the big blow-off. If you are a Washingtonian or a son of a Washingtonian you will shed tears of joy. Would that I were a Demosthenes or an Andrew Kurrus to get this over. It is a big thing.

"Gentlemen, I tell you in plain words, we beat Nebraska and won the S. A. T. C. championship of the Valley.

(17-minute intermission for applause)

"They raise them big in Nebraska, my brethren. For the first 14 years the youths of that state eat Quaker Oats and drink cow's milk, thus making them strong and robust. Then the state feeds them beef meat so as to make them very wild and fierce. In a few years, when they are husky and wild, they play on the football team, so it is very hard to defeat these Cornhuskers.

"But by the aid of Eber Simpson's swell kicking toe and Joe Evans' famous hip shift, and the incomparable fight put up by 14 other varsity members, we sent them back to Lincoln in splints and bandages. True enough, they scored a touchdown, but you will understand that we were all fighting army men then, gentlemen and members of the faculty, and in respect to the common cause we had to show some evidence of compatriotism.

"So there you have before you, my fellow students, the story of Washington's great football year. I thank you."

Somebody slapped the wall-eyed freshman on the back. He awakened from his reverie with a start. "Come along, freshie," asserted the senior, "the party's over; and we generally stand up when the band plays Alma Mater."

Track

THERE was nothing actually extensive about the 1918 track season at Francis Field; but when one considers the scope and success of the activities in comparison to that of seasons gone by, there is a just license for satisfaction.

The piece de resistance of the season was the participation of the squad in the Missouri Valley Conference games at Columbia, Mo., in May. Washington University had not been represented in the annual meet since 1915, when the contests were last held on the Pikeway campus. Incidentally nary one point has been awarded to the maroon column since back in the stone ages, when Don Lambert, pole vaulter, served as a forerunner for modern aviation.

And so, just to mark the year 1918, Coach Rutherford sent six men to Tigertown in the hopes that "we might do something."

We did.

No new records were established and the aforementioned squad did not come home with the titular honors. But suffice to say, three places were taken: one first by Carter and two seconds by Kremer. Carter won the broad jump with a leap close to 23 feet, while Kremer took runner-up positions in the two weight events. This gave Washington 11 points, enough to tie for third place in the competition.

During the winter season several of the athletes competed in the annual Coliseum indoor meet and collected enough points to breeze ahead of the St. Louis University delegation, which, after all, is in itself enough to characterize a season as being successful.

The inter-class meet resulted in one of the closest struggles for class supremacy that has ever been held on Francis Field. Oddly enough, the main contending teams were the two lower classes. The ultimate result was in doubt until the last event.

But the Sophs had an "ace" up their sleeves and Warren Miller went over with a pole vault conquest, while Bothman of the Frosh took second place. This gave the second-year men 46 points, while the yearlings could scrape together only 43. The Seniors scored 10, while the Juniors brought up the rear with four markers.

Kremer with first in the two weight events and seconds in the quarter-mile and high hurdles was high point man of the day, while Jacks with two firsts and one second was not far behind. Other event winners were as follows: Bothman, Drake, Hudson, Wolff, Carter, Berger, Condie and Miller.

The only new record to be established was set by Kremer in the discus event. The sophomore captain hurled the disc 114 feet, 9 inches, which replaces the former record, held by DeMott Modisette, '15, by seven feet.

Pan Hellenic Baseball

THE Pan Hellenic baseball honors in the spring of '18 were captured by the strong Theta Xi nine following a series of games played by the fraternities on Francis Field.

With the championship title the Theta Xi team was awarded the Drosten Trophy which had been held for two years by the Phi Delta Theta Chapter. The trophy was presented to the fraternities by William Drosten several years ago with the understanding that the trophy become the permanent award of the fraternity winning the baseball honors for three consecutive years.

Seven games were played before the contest was narrowed to two teams. There were three steps of elimination and the final three-game series was contested by the Theta Xi's and the Kappa Alpha's.

Keen competition and good attendance marked the final series, but the Theta Xi team easily demonstrated its superiority over its opponent.

Following are the teams, score, and rounds as played:

Inter-Mural Basketball

The 1918 Inter-Mural Basketball Tournament, for the honors of the University, was very successful, notwithstanding war conditions. The players took great interest and worked hard with their respective teams until defeated. There were fifteen teams entered in the contest, the interest finally centering on the fraternity representatives and the Outlaws, a team composed of non-fraternity men. The latter won the tournament.

Field Meet

THE Girls' Annual Field Meet was given May 1st under the auspices of the Women's Union, and, judging from the number of High School guests attending, the meet apparently fulfilled its purpose—that of fostering interest in girls' athletics at the University.

A new and gratifying spirit was shown by the women of Washington themselves, there being one hundred and eighty-three entries for the various events. The indoor contest consisted in traveling rings, combination jump, standing and running high jump, and fencing; while at the same time, taking place outside the Gymmie, were the shotput, javelin hurling, standing broad jump, walking, sprinting and relay races, and archery. McMillan Court was given over to exercises, folk and esthetic dances by the Freshmen, Sophomore and advanced dancing classes. Lois Forsythe, Jeanette Brinkman, Lillian Stupp and Mary Hope featured in individual Greek dances.

The success of the meet was partially measured by the fact that six field records were broken. Irma Willet broke both the 50 and 100-yard dash records and was winner of the meet by totalling 255 points. Wilma Grant, who came second with 135 points, raised the traveling rings record from 74 to 80. The other two records broken were the shotput by Margaret Haase, and the 100-yard walk by Evadne Alden.

Thyrsus Review

The Annual

IN spite of a depleted membership and difficulty of production because of war conditions, the 1918 Thyrsus annual, "A Single Man," was probably the best in the history of the organization. The play was given at the Victoria Theater on May 8th, for the benefit of the Red Cross.

The acting honors easily belong to Morris Carnovsky. Mr. Carnovsky's performance was consummately polished, without a hint of amateurism. It was, in large measure, his able interpretation of a rather unconvincing role which made the play a success. Max Muench, as Henry Worthington, was excellent.

Genevra Sturdevant had the difficult feminine lead. Gertrude Walther as the young and somewhat foolish Maggie Cottrell, was charming. Miss Walther, besides being a very delightful ingenue, was an actress of ability. Mildred Hess, as the young and pretty Mrs. Worthington, was an actress of distinction. Grace Lewis had the very trying part of the affected Louise Parker, and did it admirably. The minor roles were capably handled.

The Thyrsus Monthly Plays.

For the five performances of the three one-act plays, The Lost Silk Hat, The Clod, and A Dear Little Wife, February 11-13, Thyrsus again returned to Thyrsus Theater, that famous, time-honored stamping ground. Perhaps the return to this native hearth is in part responsible for the very admirable way in which these plays were presented. If so, it is due only in small part to this fact, for the great amount of credit must be given to the actors themselves.

Lord Dunsany's difficult play, The Lost Silk Hat, was presented in a way which solved for the audience the preplexing problem of the dramatic quality of the play. The cast was admirably chosen, and even the stage setting, very new and shiny, was appreciated by the spectators.

Miss Poertner as Sugihara San in A Dear Little Wife, deserves mention for her charming portrayal of the part. She was ably supported by Mr. Goldstein and Mr. Broida.

Of The Clod, the most complete praise is found in the words of Doctor Mackenzie: "Every part was played as it should have been, and the result was a harmony and finish rarely seen off the professional stage."

The greatest praise goes to Miss Jonah for her most excellent acting. She was the clod in every respect, and her portrayal passed far beyond the fold of amateurs.

HEN the Washington unit of the Student Army Training Corps was demobilized on December 16, 1918, the University Military Committee immediately began negotiations with the War Department for the establishment of a unit of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps at this institution. The negotiations were successful, and in January, 1919, voluntary enrollment for military training under the Reserve Corps regulations was opened. Major Wallace M. Craigie, former local S. A. T. C. Commandant, was detailed for duty as Professor of Military Science and Tactics, and Captain Irwin L. Lummis, former Post Adjutant, as his assistant. The cadets were divided according to size into three companies, "A," "B," and "C," and cadet officers placed in charge. Monday, Wednesday, and Friday from 4 to 5 p. m. were designated as drill days for the unit. Friday was designated as Battalion Parade day, and one day of the week set aside for class room work in tactics.

Under the War Department regulations the R. O. T. C. is divided into two courses, the elementary and the advanced. Three hours drill per week only are required in the preliminary grade, whereas advanced course men must put in a total of five hours per week. Students in the advanced course are paid quarterly commutation of rations at the prevailing daily rate. Recommendations have been made to the War Department to allow students credit towards advanced standing for training with the S. A. T. C. and other military organizations, and it has been suggested that the University authorities allow the Cadet officers salaries ranging from $5 to $10 monthly to cover incidental expenses. Upon completion of the advanced course students showing marked ability are recommended for commission as 2nd Lieutenants in the Reserve Corps.

DANDELION DAY

THE QUEEN

REVIEW

BOOK ·V·

The Year

THE University began the year determined to bear its full share of the burden the war had laid upon our country. The entire curriculum was remodeled with this object in view, and plans for the reception of the Students' Army Training Corps were complete when the epidemic of influenza necessitated a complete suspension of all activities for a period of five weeks. And when work was finally begun, it was destined to last for but a very short period of time, inasmuch as the armistice was signed only two weeks later.

In order to meet peace conditions the curriculum was overhauled once more and strenuous efforts were made to keep the scholastic year from being utterly lost. In these efforts the faculty was highly successful and work at the University has once more assumed a normal, sedentary routine.

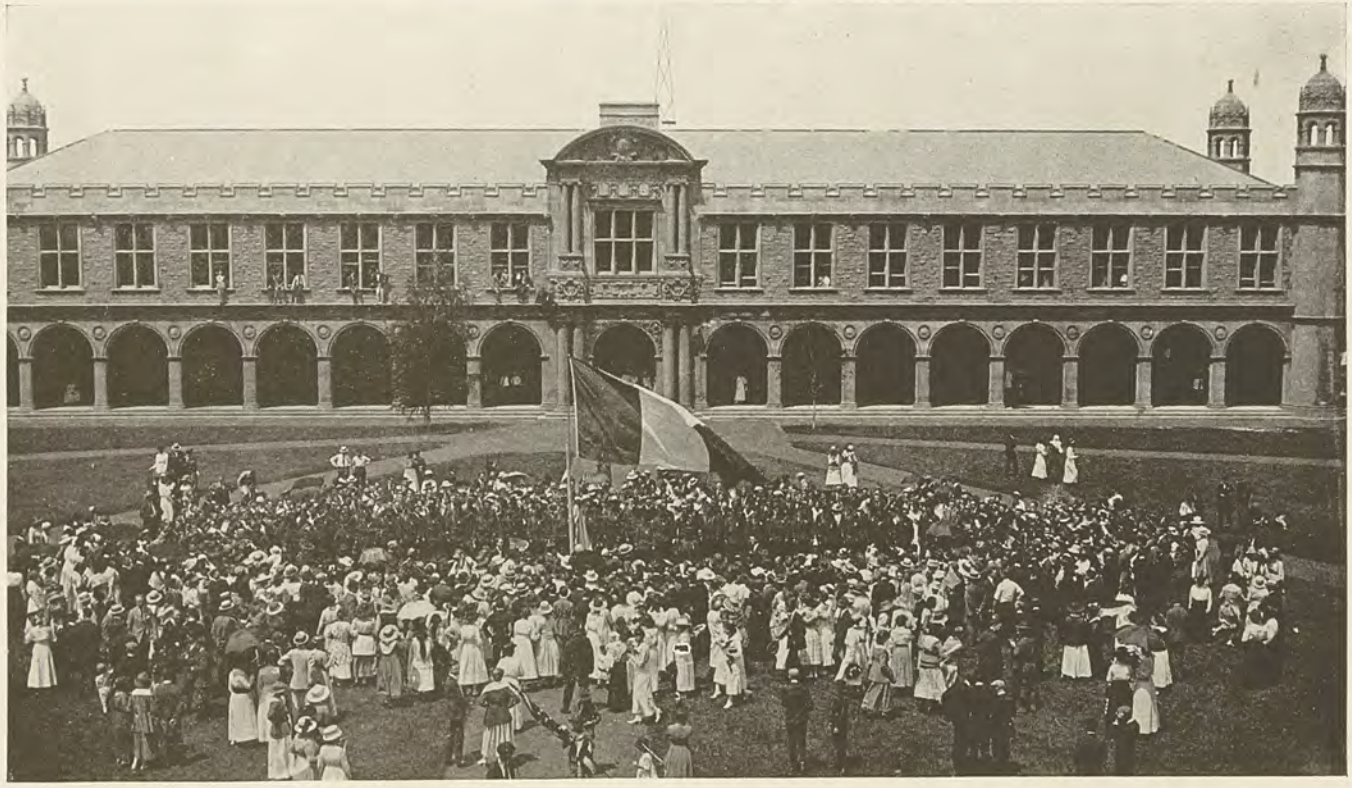

In athletics, a branch of student activities that was expected to suffer an almost total eclipse, the year has been an unusually successful one. The football team easily won premier honors, and the track prospects are excellent. The women of the University continued to improve upon the exceptional showing they made last year in athletics, and spirited competition was the rule in all their sports.

The United War Work Campaign, the various campaigns on behalf of the French orphans, as well as other war activities in general, were supported with enthusiasm by the student body.

Social activities, although practically non-existent at the beginning of the year, were restored to their former prominence early in 1919, and the Junior Prom set a high standard of excellence for succeeding classes to emulate.

As an earnest of their intention to meet the new conditions of peace and reconstruction with the same spirit they so successfully brought to war duties and obligations, the University authorities announced plans providing for the construction of new quarters to house the growing schools of Law, and of Commerce and Finance.

Visit of the Blue Devils

The Blue Devils

The contingent of "Blue Devils" which visited the Quad on Monday, May 27, was greeted enthusiastically by several thousand persons. This visit of the famous Chasseurs Alpines marked a red-letter day in the war annal of Washington University. These hundred veterans have been called the "Elite of the Elite," for they represent seventy-five thousand Chasseurs Alpines, an army unit famous even before the war.

The line of machines carrying the soldiers arrived at University Hall at eleven o'clock. With the Great Lakes Band as escort, the "Blue Devils" marched to the center of the Quad and formed a line before their flag.

Chancellor Hall made a brief address of welcome, after which the band played the "Marseillaise" and the "Star Spangled Banner." In the informal reception that followed, the soldiers were greeted first by St. Louisans of French origin and later by the enthusiastic coeds. Washington's soldiers, stationed at the Gym., arrived later in the morning, and recieved their share of the applause.

Just before the departure of the visitors, our Cheer Leader led three yells—one for the Army, one for the Navy, and one for the "Blue Devils."

United War Work Campaign

Washington University contributed $11,614.10 to the United War Work Campaign. The total is only slightly below that of Missouri University, which led the state, and it is a splendid showing, in view of the influenza ban which handicapped the general campaign throughout the city.

The S. A. T. C. led with a total contribution of $6,070.75. The Medical School ranked highest among the professional schools, with $2,044.65, exclusive of its S. A. T. C. men. The college women contributed $1,150.53. Of this amount $22.95 was given through student organizations.

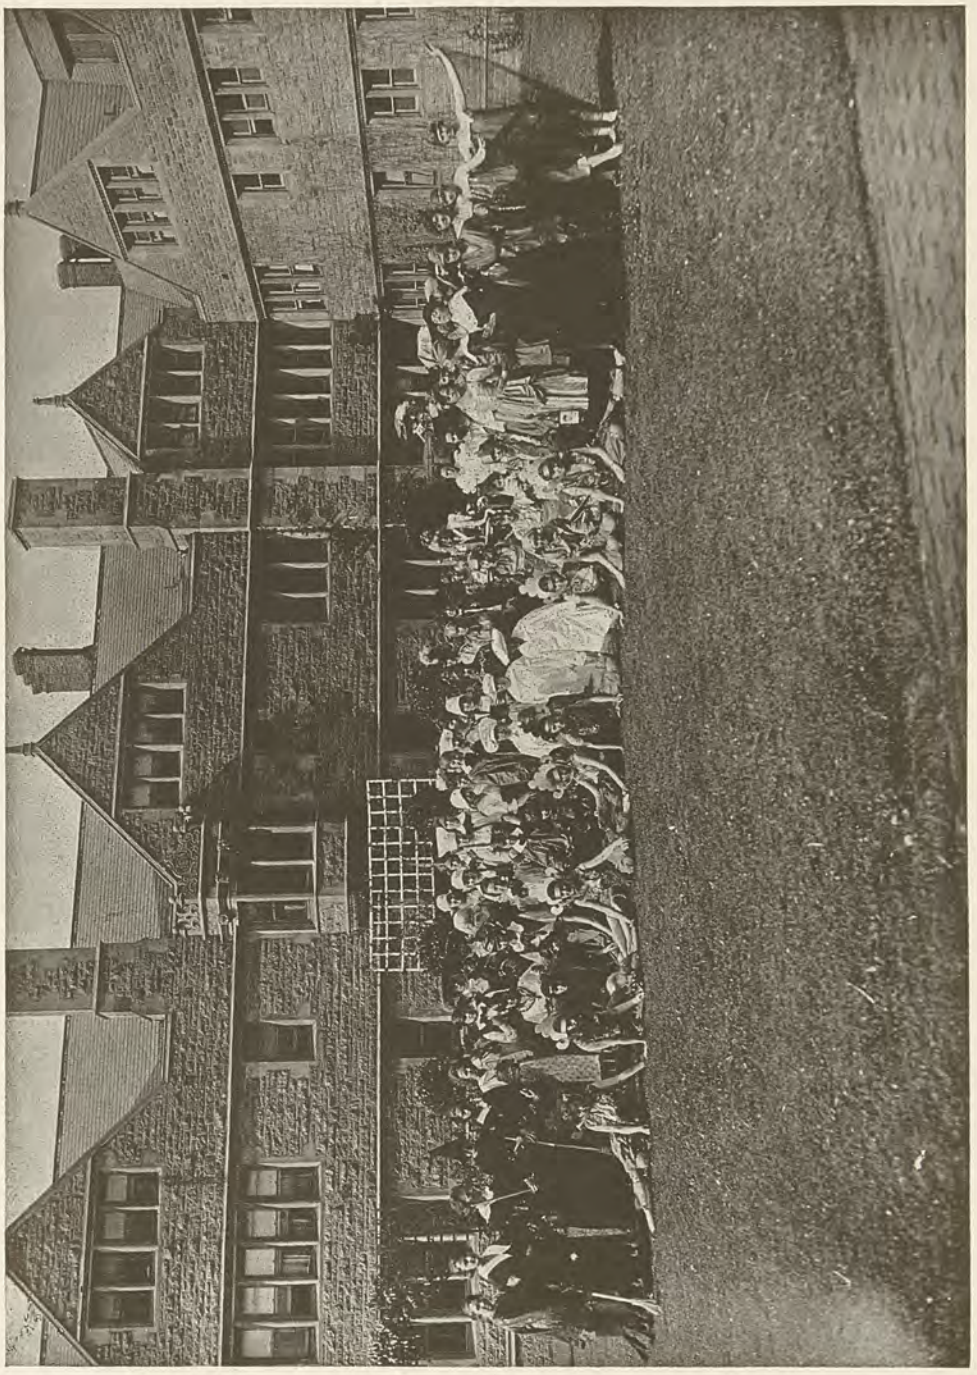

Professor Shipley was in charge of the drive on the campus.

Fourth Liberty Loan

Washington made a splendid showing in the Fourth Liberty Loan drive which was conducted on the campus in October. The total sale amounted to sixty-four thousand, seven hundred dollars. This sum did not include figures from the departmental schools, where separate drives were held. The campaign was conducted under difficulties, having taken place during the influenza ban.

Mr. Ludwig Kotany, treasurer of the University, was captain of the drive.

May Day Cast

May Day

ON MAY the fifteenth, the annual May Day festival was held in the court of McMillan Hall. The cast was somewhat larger than usual, but the ninety-eight girls who took part in in the performance worked with such hearty cooperation that the fete, which has now become a tradition of the University, was one of the most beautiful and effective plays ever presented by the Co-eds.

A young princess, the only daughter of a powerful king, is bewitched by Dame Care and never laughs or is happy. As a result the whole land is in mourning and the king forbids any sort of festivity or merry-making among his subjects except on one day of the year. On the Princess' birthday, there is a celebration in which all the king's subjects take part and every endeavor is made to make the Princess happy. The king has offered the hand of his daughter in marriage and half a kingdom to the one who can make her smile, but any one who tries and fails after three attempts will be beheaded at sunset. On this birthday of the Princess, there are three applicants for her hand; The Wizard; The Prince of the East; and the Puppet Player. Each in turn tries three times to make her smile but it is all in vain, and the king has ordered the three suitors to be beheaded when a boy, who had been given a magic fiddle in return for kindness to a beggar, enters, and by a charm, not only makes the Princess smile, but even laugh heartily. Of course, he is entitled to the hand of the Princess in marriage and half a kingdom, and the king in his joy allows the three other suitors to escape with their heads.

Dandelion Day

THOSE fellows of '21 surely can fight! You should have seen the quad that memorable eighth of May. It was a miniature Argonne. Each regiment mistook the other for a German one, and they treated each other like veritable Fritzie boys. It is a good thing the firearms were finger nails and elbow grease, because there would have been many casualties if more dangerous weapons had been allowed. Even as it was, the men who had been fighting in the front line trenches were hardly fit to go to class after the battle. A basket of the precious yellow weed never reached head-quarters entirely full. Its bearers usually engaged in four or five skirmishes before it was deposited in the hands of Walter Kamp.

From the beginning of the contest, it was evident that the rivals for the queen's crown were to be Gertrude Walther and Eleanor Osgood. The uncertainty of the outcome kept the spectators interested until the last minute. For a while it seemed that Miss Osgood would be the victor, but the flashing charm of Miss Walther brought down the prize in the end.

Miss Margaretha Roth, vice-president of the senior class, received the crown for Miss Walther, who was taking part in the final rehearsal for the Thyrsus Annual. Miss Walther was crowned at the theatre that evening.

The Red Cross Shop

NO department of Washington University war work was more important or more successful than the Red Cross workshop established on the campus. Certainly in no branch of the service here at home was more interest shown or more work accomplished. The shop was one of twelve under the supervision of the Saint Louis chapter, and yet it turned out nearly one-fifth of the dressings made in the district. The very great success of the work room is due to the generosity of the Washington University Corporation in housing, heating and lighting it; to the untiring heroic work of the women who were instructors, and to the faithful attendance and energy of the workers. All combined to make the Red Cross work shop an institution of which the University can be most proud.

The shop opened in November, 1917, and closed in November, 1918. From the date of its opening until May, 1918, Mrs. John Livingston Lowes was in charge, and from May until November 1918, Mrs. E. H. Wuerpel was the head of the room. At first, work was done in Thyrsus theatre, so kindly offered to the Red Cross by Thyrsus Dramatic club. At the beginning of the summer the shop was moved to the Art School which afforded larger and cooler quarters. In the fall, with the opening of the Art School, it was again moved, this time to Graham Memorial Chapel, where its increased attendance was adequately accommodated.

The dressings made by the shop were five yard rolls, four by eight compresses, two kinds of sponges, applicators, tampons, influenza masks and three kinds of pads. The total number of dressings made is 1,714,280. This shop made more five yard rolls than any other in the district, and turned out more dressings per person than any other workroom.

Over two thousand persons registered for work. During July, the banner month 5,500 people attended and over 250,000 dressings were made, packed and sent to France. These figures are specific examples of the enormous amount of work accomplished by this one unit of the American Red Cross.

The Junior Prom

THE Junior Prom, the most elaborate social event of the school year, was given in Francis Gymnasium on March 24th. It was not quite as well attended as the proms of previous years, but it was, nevertheless, a great success. About two hundred and fifty couples took part in the grand march, which opened the evening's festivities.

Jamerson McCormack and the Decoration Committee had transformed the Gym into a ball-room of unusual beauty. White wooden columns were placed at intervals around the walls, and between them were hung blue draperies. An artificial ceiling, made of a deep blue material, contributed greatly to the effectiveness of the scene. The orchestra, the largest which had ever played at a University affair, was screened off by palms and lattice work.

The announcement that Gertrude Walther had won the Hatchet contest was a feature of the affair. Miss Walther was presented with a huge corsage boquet in honor of her victory.

VIEWS OF S.A.T.C. QUARTERS

S. A. T. C. Unit

THE mobilization of a battalion of the Students' Army Training Corps at the University last fall saved Washington from becoming a girls' college for the period of the war and proved the value of the colleges to the nation.

It was no small task to co-ordinate the ordered work of a university with the equally well-ordered but far different work of the army. Washington University was extremely fortunate in the progress made here in surmounting these problems, and it is certain that had not demobilization come, a smooth-running and successful establishment would have been attained.

It was freely stated that Washington's was as good a unit as any of its size in the country, and especially in the Missouri district.

On October 1, 1918, 800 men students assembled in Francis Field and heard read the proclamations of the War Department and of Col. Robert I. Ries, head of the Corps, inaugurating the S. A. T. C.

The battalion was divided into five companies in the academic section. Four of the companies were of about 160 men each, and the fifth company was composed of about sixty Dents. Major Wallace M. Craigie, a retired cavalry officer and former commandant of the University of Missouri R. O. T. C. unit, was commanding officer of the post, and Capt. Irwin L. Lummis, an infantry officer of the regular army, was adjutant. Lieut. Carl I. Rahn acted as personnel adjutant with a Headquarters Company of about thirty under him. The First and Fifth Companies were jointly commanded by Lieut. Harry B. Duncan (Vanderbilt). The Second Company was under Lieut. Albert P. Stark, Jr. (U. of Montana). The Third Company's commanding officer was Lieut. Pettibone (Colorado Aggie). The Fourth Company was commanded by Lieut. Pettway (U. of Tennessee). There were also two companies in the Vocational Section, commanded by Lieuts. Devlin and Pace. The medical officers were Capt. Robertson, post surgeon, and Lieut. Henselmeier, dental officer.

The regular army infantry drill was taught and in the two months' working time, sufficient progress was made to hold a creditable battalion drill. A number of men were sent to various officers' training camps and more would have gone had not the war ended. It was primarily as a feeder of officer material that the S. A. T. C. was started.

It would not do to forget the large unit of the Medical Reserve of the National Army which was in training at the Medical School. These men had some drill and continued their professional studies while quartered in a large apartment building in the 4900 block on Forest Park boulevard.

The fact that the Reserve Officers' Training Corps unit was established at Washington is proof that the S. A. T. C. idea was good and that it was well carried out. A large number of the men who received their first taste of college life as soldiers here remained in school. That is proof that the University had not lost its vitality.

Andrew Kurrus at the age of seven years. Judging from this picture, we are presented an auspicious omen that Kurrus will become a prosperous lawyer. The patent leather shoes are an indicator of the prosperity, while the pose is significant to the star of jurisprudence. This picture is rather famous in the gentleman's history, inasmuch as it is the last one taken in which the subject's mouth is entirely closed.

Grace Miller Woods with her mouth open! Miss Woods, when sought for a statement, was a bit hazy on the immediate circumstances under which this picture was taken. She says that she was either calling for her bottle or singing, "We are the Pi Phis." Her rendition of both compositions is said to have been quite superb.

Showing Wilson Lewis during the speculative period of his career. It seems that at this time, young Wilson's hair is of a nondescript shade, and the elder Lewises are in doubt as to the ultimate hue. Mrs. Lewis has just remarked, "Oh, dear, I am certain that Wilson will be a blonde." This remark was not well received by Old Man Lewis, who hotly retorted, "I'll bet the family plate that his thatch is as black as coal." Wilson is smiling, because he alone realizes his destiny,—the hair will be red.

Presenting little Jean Brookes. You will notice that Jean is laughing heartily. According to the best authorities, this is her last official laugh in public. The reason is as follows: Early in life Jean was always smiling. On this occasion the photographer said, "Smile, pretty baby, and see the birdie." She smiled but the bird came not. She got sore at the photographer for telling a falsehood and since then has been off of the world in general.

Perhaps you will doubt that this is Maximilian Starkloff Muench, because you do not see the Kappa Alpha pin or the spectacles. Max is here at play and this accounts for the absence of the glasses. He only used them for reading purposes. As to the pin, he had just finished breakfast and had left it (the pin) on his bib.

This is Dorothy Jackes snapped by the photographer at a turning point of her life. You will notice the position of her arms. She had been reading a copy of Student Life when her brother Stanley rudely grabbed it from her hands. Miss Jackes is undecided whether to assert her feminine prerogative and weep, or to act sagely and wallop Stanley on the chin. It is questions like this that make great women think.

This is Julian Walter Goldstein shortly before he began to wear a mustache. You will notice that Julian is a very handsome youth, a condition which causes all of the young women on the block to kiss him without the slightest of provocation. He is rather incensed and in a statement to the Hatchet, said: "This kissing stuff gets on my nerves. I think I'll raise a mustache. Perhaps that will keep a few of them away."

The feminine half of this picture is Miss Faith Young, first business manager of the Hatchet. Thorough investigation has not revealed the identity of the male co-tort-feasor. However, we have a hunch that this is none other than Frank Simmons, Hatchet editor. The picture might have been taken at one of their early meetings when Miss Young was trying to persuade Simmons to use wrapping paper for covers in order to cut down expenses.

Tes-Tea-monials

MONDAY, SEPT. 9, 1918.

I FEEL as though this being rushed was one of the milestones in my life and the only thing to do is to keep a a record, which I can show to my grandchildren some day. Of course, I haven't decided what fraternity I'm going to join yet, but I rather have an idea that I'll like the Pi Phis. I've always heard what a keen bunch they were and how they always have so many dates and everything. Billy—I don't mind asking his advice, because he lives near me at home, though, of course, I don't feel that I have to do what he says. Anyway, he says, "Join the Thetas." He's a Phi Delt and he says they always do politics together. I don't quite understand what he means, but it has something to do with class elections. He says everybody does it. The Betas do it with the Pi Phis, etc., ad infinitum. (That's what taking Latin did for me. It teaches one so many cute phrases like that.)

TUESDAY.

Well, I went to my first Pi Phi party and they certainly are high steppers. And peppy? Oh, my! Some girl sits down at the piano and jazzes off something that only she knows the name of—she composes all her own stuff—they tell me. They also have a girl that they call "Jakey" that pulls off a lot of rough stuff, but then she's the kind of a girl that can get by with it. I liked the bunch fine and wouldn't mind being one of them, especially as they promised me dates for every "Lock" and hinted at the Prom. That would mean a lot to a freshman like me who doesn't know many people. I'm going out with the Delta Gams tomorrow.

WEDNESDAY.

The Pi Phis called me up this morning and wanted me to reconsider and not go to the other parties. It looks like they're afraid for me to meet the others, so I wouldn't promise. The D. G's were darling to me. They had a swell party at some country club, with the best food. I bet they must have a lot of money in their chap, for they called for me in a machine and treated me just grand. From the way they talk, I guess the D. G's must just about run athletics, and they just the same as promised me a place on any team I wanted to get on. I'm going to a dance given by the Pi Mu Alphas and I must hurry and get ready.

LATER.

It's awfully late, but I must write it up while it's all fresh in my memory. I liked the girls fine. They have such an adorable way of fixing their hair over their ears. I'm going to try mine that way tomorrow and if it doesn't look well, I don't see how I could possibly join them, for I think they must have some rule that you have to fix your hair that way; I just won't wear my hair unbecomingly.

THURSDAY.

I was out to the Theta rooms this morning and they seem to have some very nice girls. They are rather queer in some ways, and they all use bandoline on their hair. I hate that, for it always shows, but then perhaps they might stop if I joined. I also noticed that one of them was chewing gum. Some rather quiet girl sits at their piano all the time—not nearly so peppy as the Pi Phi one—and plays slow music and the Thetas all sing out of tune. There was one tall, dignified girl that went around and talked to all the rushees. She talked real seriously to me and said she hoped I realized the responsibility that I was taking on myself in coming to college, for I might get some mistaken ideas and then I'd have a share in corrupting the world.

FRIDAY.

Goodness, I've got to hurry up and decide, for tomorrow's pledge day. I went with the Gamma Fis on an all day party. I had a good time, but I nearly died going to the drug store so much. This being rushed is surely hard on my complexion. I can't begin to enumerate all the times I go to the drug store and candy! Oh, I'm always gettin' that. I haven't spent a cent since I came except for stamps.

SATURDAY.

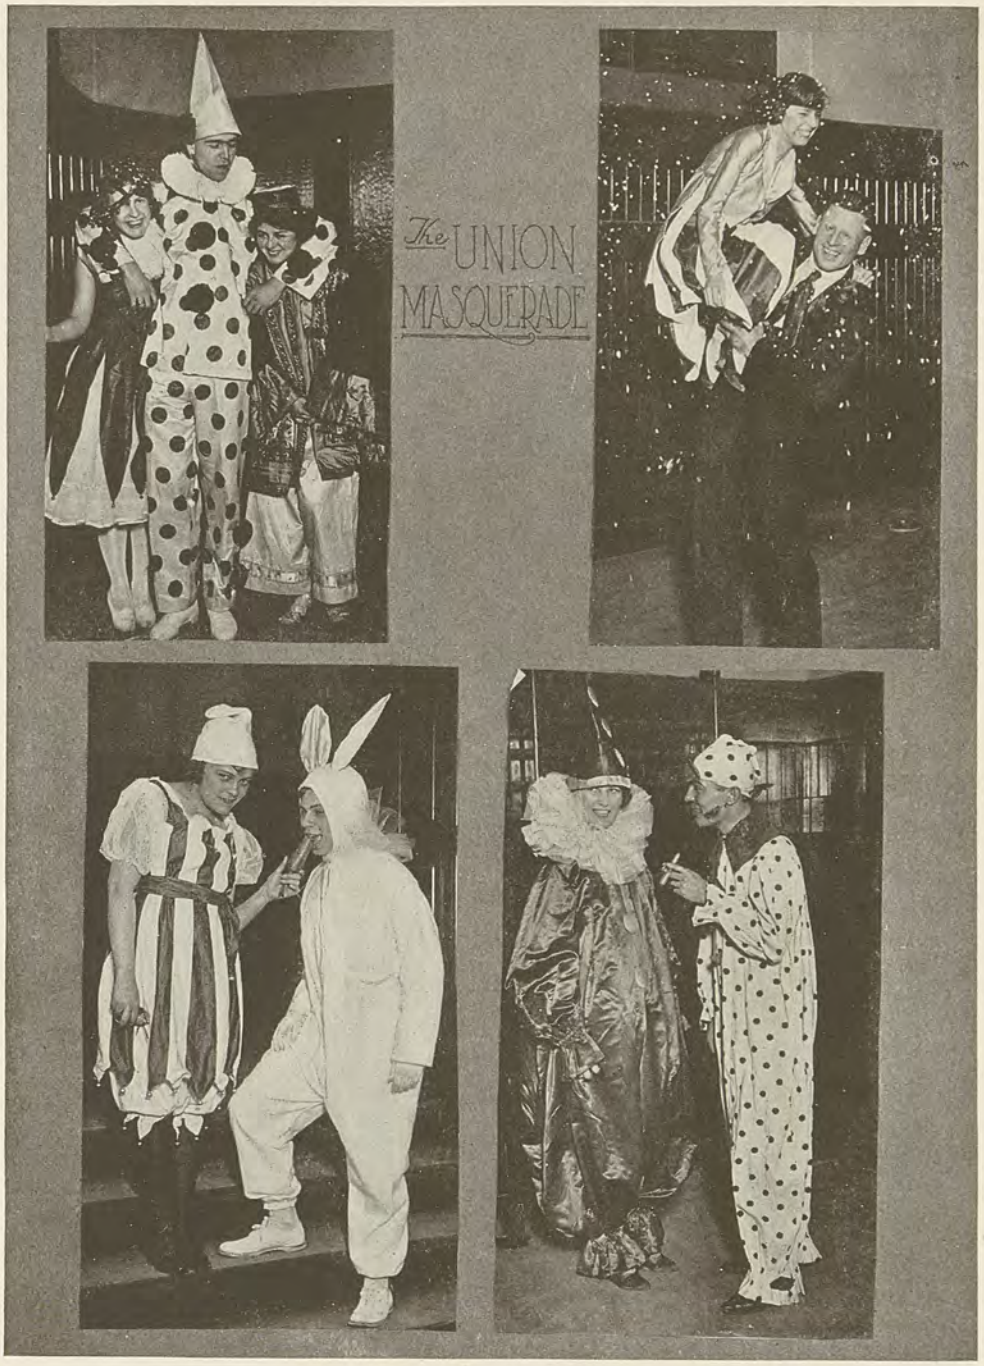

My fate is decided. I do feel rather left out of it when all the other girls are wearing ribbons, but I think I have very good reasons for taking the stand I did. I'll put them all down in order.

No. ONE.

I couldn't decide which I liked the best. The Pi Phis are nice, but I don't think I could ever come up to their intellectual basis. For instance, I heard them mention Cicardi several times, and try as I will I can't imagine who he is. The Thetas would do for some people, but I can't stand singing off the key and they tell me they always sing that way. The Pi Mu Alphas are too flighty and I would always be worrying that they'd tire of me. Then I know I never could afford to keep up with the Delta Gams, so there's only Gammi Fi left, and somehow I have a presentiment that we wouldn't harmonize. I can't explain why I feel that way, but I do.

No. TWO.

Again, there are girls in each one that I never could learn to call sister and I had just been thinking myself a nut for letting that make any difference when I had the happy thought: Why not compose my own society? I think it's a splendid idea, for then I can have just who I choose in it. I can't decide on a name, but I'll be sure to think of a beautiful one soon. I've just told Helen, my room-mate, about it, and she thinks it's grand too, but then I don't believe she had a chance to join anything else.

The UNION MASQUERADE

A Legal Digression

HEN recent developments gave rise to the rumor that Senator Selden P. Spencer was seriously being considered by his political henchmen as a 1920 presidential possibility, the thinking and the unthinking public instantly turned its attentions to the Washington University Law School, from which Spencer matriculated into politics.

This it might be mentioned is a failing with which the thinking and the unthinking public is always possessed.

Thus do the destinies of the institutions of learning depend on the nobler pursuits of those who have graduated therefrom. I ask you, friend reader, would you base the reputation of the Law School upon the activities of a few shyster barristers who chase ambulances on 1908 motorcycles? No, you do not; you wait until there is a presidential election or the announcement of a candidate for the Board of Aldermen and then you hear it said to all the world, "There is a law school; the nations seek its products. It needs them for the greater offices. Yes, I repeat, that is a law school, indeed."

When Cesare Borgia put knockout drops in the coffee of about threescore fellow citizens, the Italian School of Pharmacy immediately became famous.

When Mark Twain received his letter degree at Oxford, the eyes of the world turned to the Mississippi school where Mark learned his A B C's.

When Abe Lincoln announced his Emancipation Proclamation, the school of hard knocks where Abe received a master's degree in tree-chopping, sprang into prominence.

And it is needless to say that the Law School has not been limited to a few bright and shining stars. There are hundreds, yea thousands, of men whose abilities as practitioners in the legal profession merely reflect the quality of the school, which is recognized as the leading light in the country.

Many have heard it said at law banquets that the reason for the success of the school's graduates is an obvious one,—it lies in the high mental endowments and capacity of the faculty. The graduates say so and the faculty admit it.

Long after Dean Goode will have been placed in retirement his lectures will be sacred in the memories of his prodigies. They will not soon forget the many times the Dean has neglected, but not maliciously neglected, to dismiss his classes at the ringing of the bell, becoming so absorbed himself in "good" law that he would prolong the lesson for so much as two hours and a half.

The MAJOR and the CAPTAIN

"·YOUNG·AMERICA"

·CHEM. E'S·

Permit a single reference to Ty Williams and immediately there comes to our minds the words that have made him famous throughout the land: "Not that I want to be dogmatic, but ——." It has been said that Ty assumes the role of the predatory plutocrat in the manner in which he propounds legal theories. And Ty has the bearing of an English judge.

How the Common Law Pleading exam maintained the championship of failure was shown in the Junior Law Class and pictured as the Waterloo for more than forty per cent of its members who fell as victims. It was a terrible tussle this first year class had with the subject which is recognized to be so complicated and technical that even that famous doctor of laws from Massachusetts, Dr. Conant, as the referee, was baffled with its principles. But Massachusetts is a code state, he would explain, and then digress to journalism, putting forth these memorable words: "Don't read the newspapers for law. They are unreliable and besides they do not contain 'good' law."

An uncertain element is Prof. Zumbalen, considered to be one of the best expounders of real property laws in these United States, but who lectures with monotony. 'Tis the enjoyment of his classes to sleep cozily through the hour, but how cruel and heartless, according to a student, is that melancholy instructor, can only be explained by a glance at his finals.

Hot air, and plenty of that, is generally conceded to be one of the basic elements naissant to a good legal education. Let us not attempt to compute how many are exploiting for this essential requirement. If the noise and buzz of an argument or a craps game is not heard in or around the school, the lawyers must have thrown a party the night before and a professional bondsman would find it profitable to visit the police station. Or who knows but what the cause of the silence may be attributed to the fact that a new flock of damsels have just arrived to pose at the Art School.

This effort, friend reader, gives you a more intimate acquaintance with the lawyers and points out how really important they are (?). (It is an enlightening article and should be read again.) It is no easy task to point out why our law school excels all others, but that is an established fact. Probably the writer has been a bit prejudiced in the preceding delirium. Well, anyway, he's a lawyer and why shouldn't he be.

the profession that when carried out to its fullest extent results in a maximum of service to mankind and like compensation to yourself.

You are entering upon the threshold of life.
You are preparing for a career at one of the grandest universities in the world.
What will you make of that career?
You can make it a lifetime of grand and glorious service to your fellow man in one of the highest paid professions on this earth, that of

Life Insurance

In entering life insurance, you are entering that service which takes care of the helpless.
Which provides for widows and orphans.
Which saves businesses, which, but for wisely procured protection would go to ruin.
Which helps sons go into business and secures an education for many young men and women.
Which has to its credit thousands of other creditable accomplishments.
The profession of life insurance will compensate you well in worldly goods for your service.

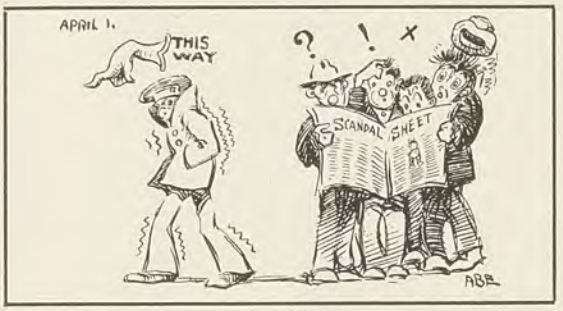

You can secure no better start in life insurance than with one who has made it his profession for twenty years and who will start you right. If you work intelligently you will be a big producer in the greatest business in the world in a very short time.

Young Man Think This Over!

Suppose someone should say to you to-night: "I want you to become a partner in my business the first of the month. If you will put $1,000 in the firm as an evidence of good faith, the partnership is yours." Would YOU be in a position to accept? Could you show a savings account that would permit of such a move? If not, turn your attention at once to some systematic plan of saving.

Hundreds of young men have gone upwards to success simply because they were ready when just such a call came. They had money as well as ability.

Ability is a mighty valuable asset, but "many a genius has starved in a garret." Start a Mercantile Savings Account today in the Mercantile Trust Company and you are on the road to independence.

MARMON 34

Let Tests on Roughest Roads Decide Which Car Excels

Will you accept this proposal to make a practical comparison of the Marmon 34 and any other comparable car? You to name the car, and the roads on which we will demonstrate the Marmon in competition with it.

Pick out the roughest ground you know, and have the demonstrator for the second car drive you over it at any touring speed. Try it at several speeds, up to that car's limit.

Then let us take you in a Marmon 34 across the same rough stretches at identical speeds. Or, if you prefer, do the driving yourself in both demonstrations.

In addition to that, have the gasoline measured at the start and finish.

The performance of the Marmon in tests like this has surprised experienced motorists. It will bring home to you the lesson in advanced engineering this car has taught.

Observe the ease in starting and stopping, the quick acceleration—and how this light-weight car adheres to the road at speeds up to 55 miles an hour without the least side-sway.

Observe the luxurious riding comfort due to the low-hung body, low center of gravity, perfect balance front and rear, extra long wheelbase and Marmon special spring suspension.

This light-weight car omits a half-ton extra load that you do not have to pull when you start and you do not have to carry on your tires while you're going.

Marmon not only reduces personal exertion, but saves from 40 to 50 per cent in tire expense, and from 50 to 75 per cent in gasoline.

All we ask is a chance to prove these facts in comparison with any other car of this size and power.

ROBINSON—A very peculiar biped, which has characteristics of man, bird, beast, and fish. It talks like a man, looks like a fish, and acts semi-annually like a beast. As to the bird connection, this is probably where the animal gets its name. Whenever spoken to or generally approached by a woman, its face turns the color of the breast of the bird known as the Robin.

CONANT—A species of bug. Authorities, however, have failed in their attempts to associate the Conant with the generally known domestic ant, or in fact even with the African ant, which is of much greater stature. The Conant hibernates in Massachusetts statutes. It was first found in Bawston.

HELLER—(Deriv.) Hell from the Phoenician "hell," meaning hell, and "er" from the Teutonic "er," meaning "err;" hence, Heller—to err like hell. This is particularly noticeable in latter January and early June, when the Heller passes opinion on its various unfortunate captives.

DOUAY—A fossil. It was brought over to this country from France. Unlike the sponge and coral, it retained life after being transplanted. Has strange hirsute erections on face.

LIPPINCOTT—(Rarum genus) An animal of male species. Mentioned here because of eccentricity. Despite masculinity seems to prefer association with female animals. Otherwise is quite regular in traits and habits.

The Love of a Man

The love of a woman is sweet;
 In life I have fondled a few,
Have felt the red blood as it beat
 The uttermost arteries through.
Yet, God in His wisdom divine,
 Yet, God in His infinite plan,
Made nothing as holy and fine
 As the love of a man for a man.

There was one with the dark in her hair;
 There was one with the dawn in her eyes;
There was one who had kisses to spare—
 For never a memory dies.
But, maids, you were nothing but maids;
 You passed as the waters ran;
For what are the angels or jades
 By the love of a man for a man.

The love of a woman is warm,
 Her kisses are hot as the south;
And glorious battle to storm
 The road to her amorous mouth.
But what is the nectar you drink,
 The fragile and beautiful span,
By one indestructible link,
 The love of a man for a man.

For when she has thrown you aside,
 Has passed from embraces and sight;
And all of the noonday has died,
 And left but the stars and the night,
You feel on your shoulder a hand,
 For comfort you come where you can,
And deep in your heart understand
 The love of a man for a man.

He'll go with you over the trail,
 The trail that is lonesome and long;
His faith will not falter or fail,
 Nor falter the lilt of his song.
He knows both your soul and your sins,
 And does not too carefully scan;
The highway to heaven begins
 With the love of a man for a man.

L'Envoi

THAT the 1920 Hatchet may be of service to those interested in the welfare of the University is the sincere wish of the staff.

Service, as the motto of all during the past trying year, has been first in the minds of men. May this spirit of serving, whether country or University, remain with us all, and may this book, in which we have tried to picture some of the life of Washington University, serve as a reminder of "Those days of youth which all of us spent with thee."

F. H. Simmons

Editor-in-Chief.

Faith Young

Business Manager.
